Farm And Home News From Over Kentucky

Practically every display made by Henderson county farmers in a recent exposition held at Evansville, Ind., was awarded a premium, a report from County Agent D. W. Martin states. The exhibits included those in hogs, chickens and fruit. Exhibits made by junior agricultural club members at the recent King Community Fair, Knox county, featured the display of farm products, according to a report of County Agent Earl Mayhew. More than 75 birds, 14 pigs, 12 calves and 20 entries of corn were displayed by the junior farmers.

Lee county farmers co-operating with County Agent T. H. Jones and local business firms are making plans for a corn and poultry show to be held at Beattyville in November, according to reports from the county. A number of banks in that district have already offered money for premiums.

So completely avert Marion county farmers replaced scrub sires with purebred ones that there are only about five remaining scrubs in that district, according to results of a recent survey made by County Agent H. J. Childress. There are more than 80 pure bred sires in the county at the present time and plans are being made to increase this number by replacing the remaining scrubs. Laurel county farmers are showing increased interest in winter cover crops to protect their fields during their coming months, according to a report of County Agent F. B. Wilson. Large numbers of them have attended meetings in which the value of such crops have been explained. An increased acreage of rye and vetch is expected to be seeded on farms in the county, according to present estimations.

As a result of a cover crop campaign conducted in Larue county by County Agent J. W. Jones in co-operation with farmers of that section 30 per cent more rye is expected to be sown in that county this fall than was sown last year.

J. M. Miller, W. W. Thornbury, C. K. Bryant and W. M. Springer, Boyd county farmers, have started demonstrations in co-operation with County Agent L. M. Amburgey and the extension division of the College of Agriculture to show the value of a number of different farm practices.

Many Graves county fields will be well protected from leaching and erosion during the coming winter as a result of the increased acreage of cover crops which has been sown, according to a report of County Agent B. H. Mitchell. More than 800 bushels of Rosen rye have been distributed to be used for cover crops and this together with a normal acreage of wheat and a 200 per cent increase in the acreage of sweet clover which will be sown is expected to result in more protection to fields of the county than has ever been the case.

Limestone is receiving special attention from Owen county farmers, a report from County Agent David P. Morris states. More than 600 tons of this material have been crushed in the county as a result of a lime campaign while six farmers will co-operate in conducting demonstrations to show its value in increasing crop yields.

Carroll county farmers are gradually eliminating the scrub breeding animals from their farms, seven more of them recently having been enrolled in the better sires-better stock movement by County Agent G. C. Routt. They have agreed to use nothing but purebred animals in all their breeding work.

Marion county farmers co-operating with County Agent H. J. Childress are making plans for a two-day poultry show to be held Nov. 7 and 8th. More than $140 in premiums have already been offered by interested banks and commercial concerns in the county. At least 200 birds are expected to be on exhibit.

Members of the Washington County Poultry Association are making plans for one of the most successful years they have ever had, a report from County Agent R. M. Heath states. They recently purchased 10 Barred Plymouth Rock chickens, including six cockerels and four pullets, for $125.

Ashland wheat, the pedigreed variety developed at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station has proved popular with Marion county farmers this fall, nine of them having purchased a total of more than 127 bushels, according to a report of County Agent H. J. Childress. Each of the nine used acid phosphate in connection with the sowing of the new variety.

American Legion News

To make former doughboys feel at home, unique plans were laid for the Nebraska state convention of the American Legion at Fremont. Military police were stationed about the city that the soldiers might have the pleasure of blithely disregarding the red arm bands of one time authority. Officers in Sam Brown blots and shiny puttees were conspicuous, but privates passed them by, cigarette in mouth, with a nod of recognition answering for the old snappy salute. Wooden shoes clattered over cobbles to bring back memories of French villages and to strengthen the illustration, small boys in street corners pleaded: "Give me one cigarette please." Signs on tumble-down buildings advertised "Vin Blanc" and "Vin Rouge," and others all but forgotten commodities of the French countryside.

C. R. Baines, general manager of the American Legion Weekly since February, 1920, has submitted his resignation, effective November 12, to become vice president and business manager of the Army and Navy Journal. The business and editorial policies of the Weekly were approved by a surveying committee which last week made a thorough investigation of the organization a national publication. Daniel F. Steck, national executive committeeman of Iowa, was chairman of the committee. In face of the Industrial depression, it was shown, the magazine is making a profit and has virtually wiped out a deficit incurred before the reorganization of the Legion publishing corporation in February, 1920.

Construction of two national hard surface highways, one from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the other from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada, is urged upon the government in a plan originating in Denver, Colo. The national organization of the American Legion has been asked to endorse and support the proposition, the originators pointing out that it would give work to thousands of unemployed ex-service men.

Marshal Foch has been voted a member of George Washington post, the American Legion, Washington, D. C., the first Legion post in the world to receive a charter. The post held that the marshal was eligible because he had commanded American troops in action. A motion to make the Generalissimo's dues 5,000 centimes was voted down, however.

Another local Chamber of Commerce which will not be in harmony with the national organization's fight against adjusted compensation for ex-service men is that of Auburn-dale, a suburb of Toledo, O. The Chamber of Commerce there has just been organized by members of an American Legion post. Formation of the commercial body undertaken by the Legion men, they said, purely as "part of our duty to the community."

For the burial of one of their war dead, American Legion men of Marshfield and North Bend, Ore., posts were required to travel seven miles in an open boat and then hike two miles with the casket over a muddy road in a drenching rain. All roads were impassable for the stage which is the sole means of travel.

Use of one of the Shipping Board's wooden "war vessels" tied up at a wharf for more than a year as a home until permanent quarters can be constructed is being sought by Rainer—Noble post of the American Legion, Seattle, Wash.

To honor Marshal Foch and other distinguished visitors, a squadron of six mail airplanes will fly from Washington to Kansas City during the American Legion national convention there this month, by order of Postmaster General Hays.

Unable further to witness the suffering of her invalid husband, an ex-service man, Mrs. Madelyn Taylor, living in the country near Little Rock, Ark., published in newspapers an offer to sell herself into servitude to get hospital treatment for him. American Legion posts of Little Rock immediately brought Taylor to a hospital and ordered treatment for him. They will foot the bills.

A strong French heritage of the A. E. F. was responsible for a touching scene during the Oklahoma convention of the American Legion. Pinning a gold medal for service on H. B. Fell, retiring state commander, James A. Ingraham, Cleveland, heard shouts of "Kiss him, kiss him" from 1,100 delegates present. He did on both cheeks.

Wounded in action and left permanently maimed, John Hansen was only able to do a house-cleaning job found for him by the American Legion employment bureau at St. Paul, Minn. But the buddy behind him in line had been out of work five weeks longer than he had, and Hansen surrendered the position to him.

President Harding was commended for calling the international conference on limitation of armaments and American delegates to the meeting were urged to use every effort to make disarmament a fact in resolutions adopted by the Oklahoma department of the American Legion in state convention.

Money Makes Money

Nearly every self made man in the United States started in life at the bottom of the ladder by BEGINNING TO SAVE MONEY WHEN YOUNG. Year after year he added to his savings. In time his opportunity came, and HE HAD THE NECESSARY MONEY WITH WHICH TO SWING IT, because he had SAVED HIS SURPLUS.
